I can see from the comments below that your poor customer service has cost you future customers. We all appreciate that this is a tough time but that does not give you an excuse to lie to customers. I for one will never knowingly book through you again because of it

🤠🤠🤠🤠 Cowboys! I have your email confirming a REFUND to my card, and I paid a cancellation cover so I will have my cash back, thanks. Chargeback has been requested via my bank and I have reported you via gov.uk for unfair practices due to covid19

Carol M @CarolM48061512 · Apr 17
Same thing happened to me. Lying cheats. I will also report them. They will have no business after all this that's for sure. No way to treat customers.

Shower of robbing, disgusting, thieving con merchants 🔴 You have not heard the last of this ! Promise a refund and then changing your minds 20 days later, trading standards and unfair business during Corona PANDEMIC a government agency.

What reputation? It would've been better to help customers now and they will come back when the time comes. Bad customer service damages companies, giving refunds would've been short term pain - long term gain!! You've damaged the reputation massively - I WILL NOT be returning.

Any reason why you have changed your mind about the refund going back onto our card? Apart from being a bunch of thieves, that is.

Total price - £204.98 (with card ending

They can't change their minds! If you've got email confirmation of a card refund then you'll get it, but they say it may take up to 30 WORKING days. For me that's the 27th April!

I had email confirmation on the 16th March that I'd get my £104 put back on my credit card, please explain to me why it's now the 17th April and I'm still waiting to see the money? I'm sorry but it doesn't take that long. You're just holding on to the cash for your own needs!

User0000 @User00000667123 · Apr 17
Waiting for my refund for 30 days, never came. Just got email saying they changed their minds and I'll just get vouchers now.

You promised a refund twice and then backtrack with a voucher. You're not there to help and you don't answer any questions. It's not good customer service to lie about refunds!

mark keogh @keogh01 · Apr 17
Yeh had the exact same happen to me ,promised a refund then told I've got to have a voucher ,why should you dictate what you can do with my money...

You are a bunch of thieves. I made a booking with you recently on the basis you told me I would get a cash refund if it needed to be cancelled and now you are saying you won't refund. I will be taking this through the claims court.

I had contact from Shannon White who promised to call me back by the end of today - obviously that was complete rubbish and after waiting for cash for a month, I get an email about a voucher which I already said is not acceptable.

Very pleased with the service. I cancelled my break due to having a reschedule problem, I spoke to someone on the phone and they cancelled it there and then and said I would get a refund within 30 days. I got the refund 2 days later. Great service. Thanks

I was promised a refund, received email. But now they have changed mind. Speaks about the company which doesn't know itself where to stand. This company is going to have no business in future for the reputation loss. The need to be transparent and truthful.

I've used holidayextras dozens of times previously but will never be using them again. Its companies like this that don't deserve to survive the hard times. Very poor decision making by the people in charge not to refund customers for a service that the customer hasn't received.

But even when I try to cancel my booking for tomorrow in exchange for a voucher your system says I'm not entitled to a refund & no mention of a voucher so I'm not risking it. Charge back seems only option when Sofitel say they have refunded you

@MoneySavingExp have you seen this? Check out the replies. I myself have a few bookings with them that I had cancellation cover on but still battling to get a refund. We are all struggling, yet some companies think it's ok to treat their customers in such an appalling manor. 😡
